

Divide and Conquer

In a world burdened by war's embrace,
I yearn for peace,
And search for grace In the arms of my Father who art in Heaven.
Just a lady who is tired of bloodshed's stains,
And I know this isn't how we should remain.
We can't continue down this path.

Why clutch the sword that fuels the fight?
When unity and love could be our guiding light.
Lower your guard.
It's shielding your heart.
Trust can be the bridge that mends and heals.
Let God in.
Allow His love and compassion reveal.
Embrace vulnerability because humility will allow healing to begin.

Choose compassion over hatred unspoken.
Together, you and I, we can mend what has been torn.
Let's create a world where love is reborn.

Start to understand that differences are what makes us beautiful.
Let your anger dissolve.
And allow your conflict to be resolved.